Typical Duties: This position, guided by the Department of Corrections mission, plays a central role in managing the correctional population, promoting public safety and determining the future of each felony offender. To carry out this responsibility, the officer cooperates with and solicits information from the public and criminal justice system, and supervises and counsels 80-100 offenders who have been convicted of a felony. The officer, at the request of District Court judges, conducts pre-sentence investigations and makes placement recommendations concerning those offenders sentenced to the Department of Corrections, which determines whether an offender is placed in prison or a community program. Officers develop these PSI reports and recommendations through cooperation with other criminal justices agencies and by using investigative skills; knowledge of laws, rules and regulations pertaining to probation, parole, incarceration, rehabilitation and treatment programs; and knowledge of behavioral science. The officer monitors probation and parole offenders, inmates and refers offenders to appropriate resources or programs using department's prescribed supervision standards using the risk and needs assessment and knowledge of state and community resources. Performs related work as required. Must have skills and abilities to equally balance social work and law enforcement duties.

Qualifications:

Thorough knowledge of probation and parole principles and correctional practices, state and federal laws and administrative rules pertaining to probation and parole; of the criminal justice system, especially correctional programs and courts; of resources available in communities and other state agencies; of investigative procedure, especially search and evidence handling; of interviewing techniques; and of report writing technique.

Knowledge of counseling and case management techniques; vocational, mental health, chemical dependency and sexual offender programs; Montana Codes, federal laws and state policies and procedures, including laws and policies relative to firearms. Working knowledge of other out-of-state laws and policies and procedures when supervising clients via Interstate Compact.

The work requires investigative skills to conduct pre-sentence, violation and placement investigations, organizational skills to maintain the records of offenders assigned to the incumbent's supervision. Excellent writing skills are needed, as lengthy pre-sentence reports service as the foundation for District Court Judge's sentencing decisions. These reports also are used by the Parole Board, prison classification, and Pre-Release screening committees for decision making. Skill is needed to make appropriate offender referrals and to determine needs of offenders and their families, and to determine the most appropriate course of action.

Excellent verbal communication skills are necessary to develop a positive rapport with offenders, Criminal Justice System members and the general public, especially when recommending rehabilitative services to offenders and to communicate effectively in court or administrative hearing testimony. Skill in proactive confrontation with offenders when appropriate for successful completion of programming and/or adherence to specific conditions of supervision.

Requires incumbents to be able to make sound decisions and recommendations relative to sentencing and placement. Incumbent must be able to complete over 160 hours of initial training, including a 40-hour certified firearms training course. Incumbent must possess the ability to make an arrest. The use of firearms is required. Must have the ability to establish trusting work relationships. Must have a valid state of Montana motor vehicle operator's license.

Competencies:

Communication - Able to clearly present information through the spoken or written word; read and interpret complex information; talk with citizens, offenders and other related criminal justice professionals; listen well.

Decision Making and Problem Solving - Able to take action in solving problems while exhibiting judgment and a realistic understanding of issues; able to use reason, even when dealing with emotional topics; review facts and weigh options.

Decisiveness - Able to stand by a decision, despite second-guessing or disagreement from others; take quick action in a high-risk crisis; make difficult decisions and follow through; assess a situation and make an optimal and speedy decision despite limited information.

Coping – Able to maintain a solution-oriented approach while dealing with interpersonal conflict, hazardous conditions, personal rejection, or time demands.

Energizing Others – Able to exhibit a “can-do” approach and inspire associates to excel; use competition to encourage others; develop performance standards and confront negative attitudes; develop a team spirit.

Initiative - Able to bring about great results from ordinary circumstances; prepare for problems or opportunities in advance; transform leads into productive business outcomes; undertake additional responsibilities and respond to situations as they arise without supervision.

Innovation – Able to challenge conventional practices; adapt established methods for new uses; pursue ongoing system improvement; play with concepts and ideas to create novel solutions to problems; evaluate new technology as potential solutions to existing problems.

Team Work - Able to share due credit with coworkers; display enthusiasm and promote friendly group working environment; work closely with other departments as necessary; support group decisions and solicit opinions from coworkers; display team spirit.

Tolerance of Ambiguity – Able to withhold actions or speech in the absence of important information; deal with unresolved situations, frequent change, delays, or unexpected events.

Education and Experience:

- Bachelor's degree in liberal arts, behavioral sciences, social work, communication or criminal justice, and some formal training in behavioral sciences, such as corrections, human services or law enforcement is preferred.
- All incumbents must successfully complete, prior to employment or within one year of employment, the Montana Probation and Parole Basic Training program at MLEA, a four-week course, and 40 hours of firearms training.
